OSCAR WILDE GETS TWO YEARS.

Unfavorable Instructions From the Court to the Jury.

TAYLOR ALSO SENTENCED.

Both Men Condemned to Hard Labor
During Their Long Term of Imprisonment.

LONDON, May 24.—Oscar Wilde's trial having reached its final stage, the Old Bailey courtroom was filled with interested spectators almost as soon as the doors were opened to-day. Sir Frank Lockwood, the Solicitor General, resumed his address to the jury, which he had begun when court adjourned yesterday. The prisoner's intimacy with Lord Alfred Douglas and the exhibition of the younger man by the hotels and public places in and about London were severely commented upon by counsel.

Referring to the much commented upon letters which Wilde wrote to Lord Alfred Douglas, counsel said that the jury had been told they were too low to appreciate such poetry and he thanked God it was so, as it showed they were above the level of beasts. (Applause which the judge promptly suppressed.)

to attain. All works of art are work produced in the moment of youth. I have no sense at all of social grades. I love society and the rich and well born on account of their luxury, culture, the grace of their lives, the external accidents of comely life. But any one, plow boy, fisherman or street arab has an interest for me. Mere humanity is so wonderful. I do not ask of the young what they do. I do not care what they are. Their ignorance has its mode of wisdom, their lack of culture leaves them open to fresh and vivid impressions. The document from which the above statement is cabled to the Associated Press is written throughout in Wilde's own writing, which is extremely graceful and firm, on a sheet of foolscap paper, and it is signed with a flourish.

When the foreman of the jury delivered the verdict, Wilde, who had entered the prisoner's dock a moment before, rose from the chair upon which he had been seated throughout the trial and stood with his arms on the rail of the dock. The silence which prevailed throughout the court-room was really painful as Justice Wills ordered that Alfred Taylor should also be summoned before him. Then in a voice trembling with emotion the Justice said: "I never before had such a shocking case as this to deal with."

To men such as you are by the very nature of your crime lost to all sense of remorse for what you have done. To think that you, Taylor, should be the keeper of a male brothel, and that you, Wilde, a man of reputed culture, should be such a perpetrator of young man. There is no doubt but that the verdict is a just one, and I shall give you the full penalty allowed by law, and I only regret that it is not more severe. You are both sentenced to hard labor for the term of two years."

Wilde did not look at the judge while the sentence was being pronounced. His eyes roved around the court-room and his face never changed color, and he looked like a man who had made up his mind to make the best of a bad situation.

Taylor smiled when sentenced was pronounced. As Wills turned in the dock and prepared to go back to the prisoner's room, the crowd yelled "Shame! Shame!" This shouting caused Justice Wills to rise and exclaim in a loud and determined tone: "Silence! Silence!" During the time the jury was debating upon the verdict, Lord Douglas strolled out of the court-room and into the court yard, where he walked about, nervously smoking a cigarette. His face

THE CAUCUS PLAN PREVAILS.

Final Proof, if Such Were Needed,
That the Lobby Has Things
All Its Own Way.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 25.—The Republicans of the House and Senate went into joint caucus at 8 o'clock last night and were in session until midnight. When they opened the doors the fate of the fellow-servant bill had been settled. Phelps had rounded up his cattle, branded a few mavericks, and turned them loose.

The caucus decided, after a debate which was led by Speaker Russell and Bothwell, representing the lobby on one side, and Minnis, Pettibone and Tubbs on the other, which wished to give the Senate ample time to consider the House bill. Bothwell insisted on an adjournment at noon to-day, but finally introduced a resolution settling the time at 6 o'clock.

The plan agreed upon was to send the Peers bill back to the Senate, amended by striking out all after the enacting clause, and substituting the House bill. With the bill was to go a resolution to adjourn at 6 o'clock. As the bill could not reach the Senate until nearly noon this would give the Senate six hours in which to have the bill printed, returned and passed. It was simply equivalent to adjourning without taking any action on the bill.

Phelps cooked up the scheme and Russell and Bothwell carried it through for them.

The House by its action stultified itself and exposed its own insincerity. After passing a fellow-servant bill Thursday and sending it to the Senate, where it could not come up for passage before Monday, it now amends the Peers bill and sends it to the Senate, with just half a day to act upon it. Of course they knew that Phelps would hold the Senate.

JULIAN'S BITING WORDS.

He Wants the Post-Dispatch's Picture for the Journal's Frontispiece.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 25.—As soon as the House met this morning the Republicans proceeded to carry out the programme agreed upon at the caucus last night. The Senate fellow-servant bill was taken up as amended by substituting the House bill and passed in ten minutes after the House was called to order, by a vote of 108 to 11. Then Bothwell introduced the resolution to adjourn at 6 o'clock. Julian of Kansas City at once sent to the clerk's desk the following:

Whereas, The Governor called this General Assembly in extraordinary session, to have it determined whether the railroad lobby controlled legislation in this State or whether the people could rule in their own interest; and

Whereas, It has been demonstrated that the lobby controls, as all anti-lobby legislation has been defeated, and this House has persistently refused to consider or pass a fellow-servant bill until it was too late to be considered by the Senate; and

Whereas, We regard that the water in the stock and bonds of the great railway corporations deserves legislative protection more than the blood in the veins of Missourians; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we confer to the people of this State our inability to legislate in their behalf by adjourning sine die; be it further Resolved, That the commissioner on permanent seat of government be instructed to erase from the portals of this Capitol the State motto: "Salus populi suprema lex esto," and write in lieu thereof that the people of this State have no rights that a General Assembly is bound to respect, and that the will of the railroad lobbyists is supreme law; be it further

Resolved, That the Post-Dispatch of St. Louis be requested to furnish this House the plates used in its issue of April 23, 1895, representing Col. Wm. H. Phelps "rounding up the lobby's fellow-servants," and that the State Printer be instructed to run it as a frontispiece to the published Journal of this extra session, as a befitting emblem of its depravity, and as a descriptive token to posterity of its degradation.

The Democrats applauded the resolution, and Speaker Russell promptly ruled it out of order.

HOUSE ADJOURNS.

Bothwell, who developed into Phelps' chief plunger, introduced a resolution agreed upon in caucus. It recited that whereas the House had transacted its important business and the Senate had adopted at once the House resolution to adjourn at 6 o'clock, that being time enough to transact business before it, the House would adopt the Senate resolution to adjourn at noon.

It was adopted by a strict party vote. Bothwell then moved that the Senate resolution be set for consideration at 11:30 o'clock. At 11:30 Bothwell called up the Senate resolution to adjourn at noon, and the Senate resolution was then adopted by the House. The House adjourned at noon.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 25.—The Senate and House combined carried out its programme smoothly. The Peers bill amended was reported from the House. The amendments were printed and it was so ordered. Lyman boldly declared that there was no use in printing the amendments, that the amendments be printed and it was so ordered. Then, as a further part of the programme, Landrum took the floor to talk against time on his resolution instructing Senators and clerks to turn into the treasury pay received

NOT SEEKING THE OFFICE.

Gen. Schofield Non-Committal, However, on Whether He Would Accept.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 25.—When Jno. M. Schofield was asked the question if it were true, as reported, that he would be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination on a free coinage platform, Gen. Schofield at first laughed, and then said: "I have never had that matter under consideration."

"Would you, if you should be a candidate at all, run on a free coinage platform?"

"That is an issue," he replied, "on which I have very firm convictions, having studied the question for many years, but I am sure the American people care absolutely nothing for my opinion on the silver question, so an expression of my views would be entirely gratuitous. As to rumors that I would be a candidate for the presidency, I have heard them, but I don't know how, when or where they originated. Those who have been using my name in such connection have done so without my authority, and I am sorry to become a candidate if he should be urged, but he would give no committed answer, reiterating, 'I have never given any consideration to that question.'"

He was asked if Speaker Crisp's interview in which he announced himself as in favor of some Western man with a military record, aided in causing the rumor. He said it might possibly, but that he did not know. He expressed himself as delighted with his visit to Houston, during the Confederate reunion. He had never been more warmly received anywhere.

"I was profoundly impressed with the loyalty evinced by the old Confederates," he added, "and I shall always regard them as one of the happiest incidents in my life."

THE WEATHER.

Showers To-Day, Clear and Cooler by Night, Fair Sunday.

Weather forecast: For St. Louis and vicinity—Showers Saturday, followed by clearing weather late in the afternoon or in the evening. Slightly cooler Saturday night. Fair Sunday. For Monday fair and warmer weather is probable.

For Illinois—Showers to-night. Sunday generally fair, except showers in extreme north. Monday—Fair and cooler in north and west and showers in southeast portion to-day. For Missouri—Fair and cooler in north and west and showers in southeast portion to-day. The weather is generally fair and much cooler by evening.

The pressure is below the normal between the Gulf of Mexico and the West, and is lowest over Lake Superior. It is highest in the North Atlantic Coast.

The barometer is rising in the West, and fair weather is probable on Sunday and Monday.

Light showers are due in St. Louis at intervals during the day. Weather clear and fair for some reason the clouds did not arrive. He says it is a difficult matter to time these rain storms. The weather Saturday night will become slightly cooler, with warmer weather Sunday.

Dr. Frankfeld was not very busy to-day. He was waiting for the showers to come and studying up the weather for next week. He said that from present indications Monday would be fair and warmer.

"St. Louis is having the proper weather for May," he continued. "All this talk about extraordinary weather is nonsense. St. Louis is the most pleasant place in the world. It is not too hot nor too cold. At Chicago the weather is decidedly chilly."
